The DIMMER VIEW

by Max Goodwin

Let's Hear it For Dad!

We are grateful to the editor of the Lemon Grove ROTARY SPOKESMAN for this Father's Day material. It was written by Lee A. Reed of Rochdale, Mass. Father's Day is June 19.

"Once a year, in June, Father is honored — after a fashion. Seemingly an afterthought to Mother's Day (a day so drenched in sentimentality that it's a wonder Mother recovers her equilibrium!).

"Father's Day appeals greatly to department stores. If he's lucky, Dad will get a new tie — usually charged to him.

"After this flicker of limelight, the man of the house goes back to being just dear old Dad . . . someone who commutes to work, pays the bills, straightens out problems, and tries to put his foot down once in a while.

"Despite the prevalence of working wives today, Dad is the breadwinner in many homes . . . a nine-to-five automation who drives the highways or rides a crowded bus every day, no matter how he feels or how the weather is.

"He trudges the treadmill to the office, performs his duties there, makes his way home again. No one calls him a hero, no one sings the praises of accepted monotony, few even notice that he is tired. Many times he is not even fortunate enough to even like his work . . . he just must do it to feed and clothe his family.

"He has to wrestle with bills, fix leaky faucets, reprimand the children. He becomes a necessary 'gadget' — press the button marked 'Dad' and things get done! Yet, if he doesn't feel like going out when his wife wants hom to, he's 'selfish.' And he is criticized for sitting in front of the television set, or falling asleep right after dinner.

"Men in the limelight — politicians, actors, authors, professional men or wealthy playboys wear an aura of glamor . . . for good or ill. They become news. People read about them, emulate or admire them. Our nine-to-fiver just goes his steady way day by day, doing his job, and the nearest he comes to excitement is to get a small raise or promotion.

"Because he is a man, and is titular head of the house, he is supposed to WANT to work . . . supposed to rise above boredom and petty annoyances.

"Most of us have to grow up to notice the uncomplaining heroes that these dear men have become through the years. Children take them for granted, young wives are often too busy to take the long view. One day we suddenly notice the weariness as Dad sits down with a sigh after a long day, or we see the sudden gray at his temples . . . feel the long-suffering patience the years have taught him. And we begin to be aware of him.

"Father's Day is well and good. Perhaps he even LIKES to get a new tie, no matter who pays for it. But let's honor Dad all through the year, notice little things we can do to lighten his burden or brighten his homecoming.

"Let's show our love, our appreciation, not in flowery speeches to embarrass him, but by thoughtfulness . . . cheerfulness, and simple kindness.

"Mother is wonderful, and her day is certainly due her. But to my way of thinking, Father is equally important, noble, and necessary to our well being . . .

Watch Out For The Embalmer

Never get the idea that our legislators are not looking out for you.

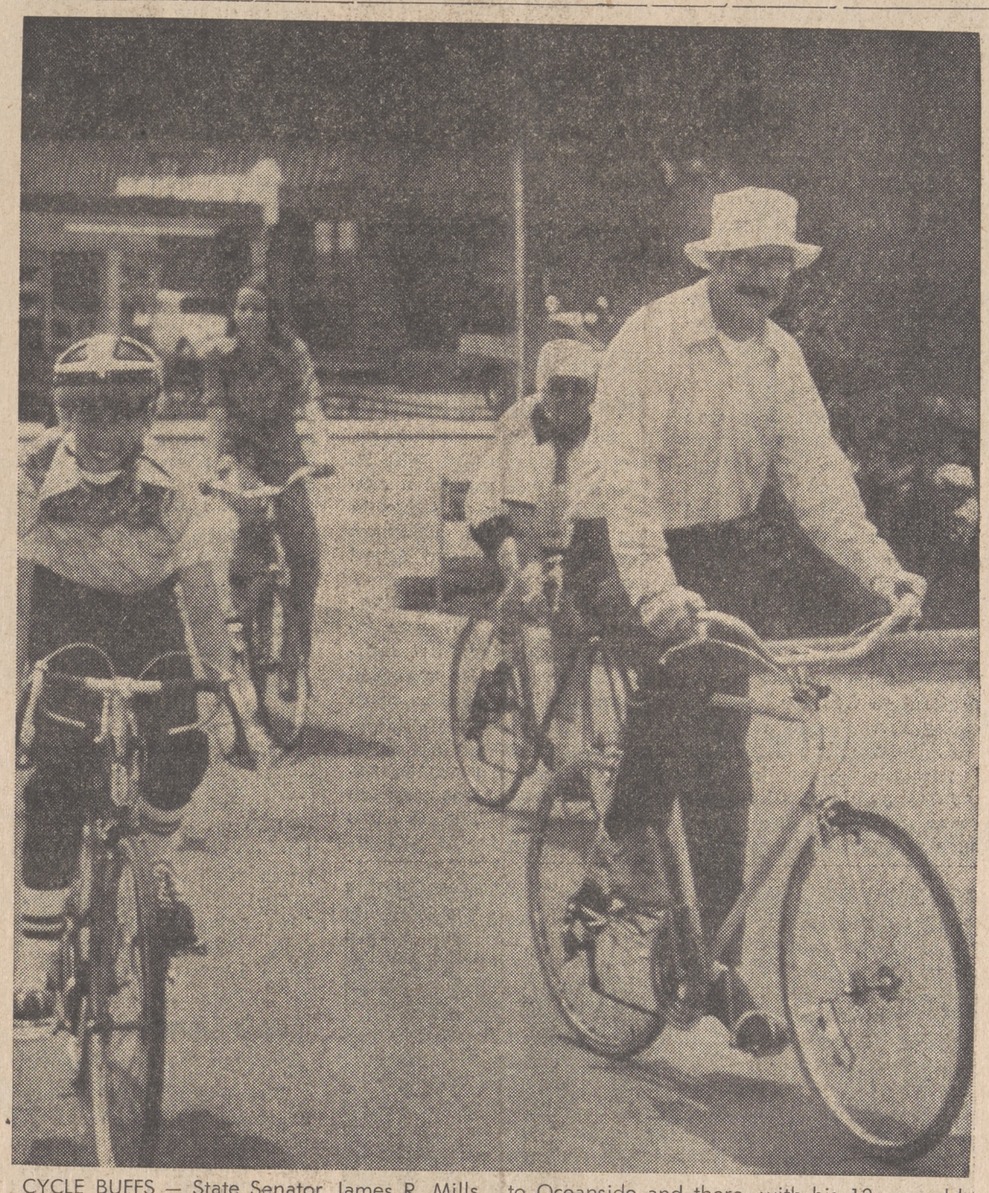

In a communuication from State Senator Peter H. Behr (R-Marin County), he complains about the policy of some coroners ordering embalming people in order to raise county revenues.

Behr offered SB 44 which certainly will become law. In it, the coroners may still order embalming but it would be done only after the family requests it and pay $100 for the embalming it requests.

In Los Angeles County alone, where coroners routinely embalm everybody in sight, the practice raises $250,000 a year.

Actually, there is no legal requirement for embalming says Behr.

We assume that it is understood, though not legally required, that the embalmee be dead.

CYCLE BUFFS — State Senator James R. Mills arrived at his office Saturday from Oceanside after traveling 50 miles on his bicycle to get there.

Why did he do it? One, he's a bicycle buff and is responsible for the many bike trails in San Diego. Second, it was to mark his 50th birthday.

Sen. Mills doesn't live that far from his office. He and his party took the 7 a.m. Amtrak train to Oceanside and there, with his 13-year old son, Billy (left); his 15-year old daughter, Beatrice, and former aide Ernie Miller, they headed south.

At his Chula Vista office, where he represents Lemon Grove and Spring Valley, too, he was met by Mrs. Mills and a group of personal friends and took part in a coffee and cake reception.

NEW RIG FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT — The Lemon Grove Fire Department took delivery last Friday of this new 1,500 gallon per minute diesel pumper.

The new truck, built by Crown Coach at a cost of about $73,000, replaces one 500 gpm pumper and one 1,000 gallon pumper the fire district will put up for bids.

Money allocated and set aside for the past four years was used to pay for the new unit.

$200 Million Collected From Overdue Tax Bills

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles District of the Internal Revenue Service has collected nearly $200 million in delinquent taxes from 1976, an increase of nearly $16 million from 1975.

The district, which also includes all of San Diego County, has collected some $199,463,474 to date from people who for the most part have had difficulty meeting their tax requirements.

"Although most taxpayers file their individual income tax returns and pay their taxes on time, there are some taxpayers who have problems meeting their tax bills," said IRS district chief W. H. Connett, "Sometimes individuals do not realize that they will owe taxes until they file their returns."

The IRS advises taxpayers who believe their tax bill is incorrect or who cannot pay their bills on time to contact the IRS immediately.

Taxpayers who do not agree with the recommendations of the IRS have the right to appeal to higher IRS management.

The Internal Revenue Service also publishes information on collection procedures and taxpayer rights. The brochure is free and titled "The Collection Process (Income Tax Accounts)", publication no. 586. It is available at all IRS offices.

Local Law Firm Adds Attorney

Attorney Donald M. de Camara, who was legal counsel in the tax department of Arthur Young & Co., a national accounting firm with offices in San Diego, has joined the Lemon Grove law firm of Davies, Barwick & Knowlton.

De Camara served in the U.S. Army 1968-'70; received his B.S. degree in Business Administration from the U. of Colorado Magna Cum Laude in 1973 and was graduated from Northwestern U. School of Law in 1976. He was admitted to the California State Bar the same year.

He was born in Ft. Belvoir, Va. in 1949.

Council Meets Tonight at 7

The Lemon Grove City Council meets tonight at 7 p.m. at the Fire Station on Central ave. — and will continue to meet every Thursday until the body becomes official July 1.

The group will not have county organizations on the agenda for the first time. Mayor Dorman said the group will concern itself with local problems that have surfaced during the past weeks.

Sheriff John Duffy and a cadre of executives attended the meeting last week. The sheriff urged the council to consider contracting with his department for Lemon Grove police duty which would include traffic control.

With Duffy were Rich Robinson, chief, erecutive assistant to the sheriff; Inspector Barney Oldham and Captain George Dodson, officer in charge of the Lemon Grove office.

What is a City?

COURT FINES AND FORFEITURES

Court fines for law violations occurring in a city are a traditional city revenue. In some California counties where the municipal courts are actually administered by the county, the fines and forfeitures are with the city receiving the major share.

All funds received for violation of the State Motor Vehicle Code must be spent for specific purposes. These funds are used for expenditures relating to police enforcement of traffic laws and other costs relating to traffic such as signs and street striping.

LICENSES AND PERMITS

There are a number of licenses and permits issued by cities for which a fee is charged. Some of these are actually designed to produce revenue whereas others are more of a regulatory nature with the fee charged being designed to cover the actual cost of enforcement.

The city incurs many increased costs as a result of commercial activity such as the need for additional traffic police patrol. The business license has been a traditional means by which businesses have contributed to the support of their city.

The most common types of regulatory permit fees in cities are building, electrical and plumbing permits. There are other similar permits for which fees are charged, such as street and curb and also sewer permits. Here again, the fee is set so that the additional cost to the city is borne by the person making the improvement.

REVENUE FROM OTHER AGENCIES (SUBVENTIONS)

A significant part of the revenue received by cities comes from other governmental agencies. Certain taxes are actually levied by the state and county governments for the benefit of cities. An example of this in California is the Motor Vehicle In Lieu Tax. State law does not permit county and city governments to levy a property tax on automobiles and this tax is paid when the owner renews his license each year. It is calculated as a percentage of the market value of the vehicle.

The state also collects all gasoline taxes. Once collected, this money is then distributed to counties and cities, based upon their populations. The local jurisdictions are then required to spend this money for street construction and maintenance. Currently these gasoline taxes may average about $10 per capita.

A portion of the gas tax funds received by counties from the state is remitted to the cities in the county for designated street projects. Therefore, it is conceivable that the average taxpayer could pay a dollar in gas tax at the time of purchase with the money being sent to Sacramento and then to the local county, but eventually being spent where the sale actually occured.

In addition, special taxes such as cigarette taxes or liquor taxes are collected by the state and returned to cities.

SERVICE CHARGES

Another source of revenue for cities is the service charge. Actually, these charges are levied for a number of activities of diverse nature ranging from trash collection to recreational classes.

CHARTER CITIES

Additional taxes may be levied by charter cities.

County Has New Bus System For E. County Riders

San Diego County officials have announced they have put into operation two 14 passenger buses which will shuttle residents of the East County areas of Jacumba, Boulevard, Pine Valley, Guatay, Descanso, Alpine, Crest, Campo, Morena Village, Potrero Tecate, Dulzura, and Jamul to Grossmont Center.

The buses stop along Highway 80 at Jacumba, Boulevard, Pine Valley, Guatay, Descanso, Alpine, and Crest.

Along Highway 94, stops are located at Campo, Cameron Corners, Morena Village, Potrero, Duldura, and Jamul.

There is the additional option of flagging the bus at any point along the route.

The bus arrives at Grossmont Center in La Mesa and Parkway Plaza in El Cajon so that riders may transfer to San Diego Transit.

Prices for the rides are set between 75 cents and $1.25.

Reservations for rides may be made by calling 478-5875.

Forms Ready Soon For Property Tax Appeals

Applications will be available July 5 for taxpayers who plan to appeal recent property tax assessments.

The forms may be secured in person from the County Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, Room 306, County Administration Center on Pacific Highway.

Taxpayers may also write the County Clerk or call to obtain the forms. The phone number is 236-2333.

To file applications for appeal, taxpayers must know their parcel of lands or their tax bill number, the address of the property, an opinion of the market value of the property, the basis of that opinion which may be sales of comparable property, the cost of construction of the property, and the income received from the property.

If the full market value of the property is $100,000 or less, taxpayers may request an informal hearing before a hearing officer.

Hearings will begin October 3 and a 30 day notice will be given prior to scheduled hearings.

New Heroin Capitol?

E. County Heroin Use Increasing New Substance Abuse Study Claims

The first comprehensive study ever done on San Diego County drug use has turned up estimates which show the East County area may be becoming the new heroin capitol of San Diego County.

The study, put together by the San Diego County Department of Substance Abuse, showed the East County area to have a greater spread of serium hepatitis cases than any other region in the county.

The study first divided the county into five regions; Central City, South Bay, North County, North City, and East County.

Then basing the spread of heroin use by the number of serium hepatitis cases reported, the East County area was found to lead the field with an 11.2 per cent increase. San Diego City, by comparison, was second with a 9.3 per cent growth rate.

Serium hepatitis, according to the study's author John Green of the Substance Abuse Department, is "one of the likely consequences of intravenous drug usage.

"Serium hepatitis," Green explained, "is usually contracted during the first two years of heroin use. The disease is contracted by users passing around the same syringes. After two years an immunity to the disease develops."

Substance Abuse Department head Richard Jacobsen Jr. said since the study was the first of its kind ever done on a regional basis in the county, and there was relatively little hard data on which to base comparisons and projections.

We're making assumptions," the director admitted, "but I feel it is a correct assumption for the East County area.

"That area is the fastest growing in San Diego. Much of it is unincorporated land without adequate police protection," the director continued, "and it has become a haven for heroin users."

The Director also cited recent heroin seizures in the Lemon Grove and Spring Valley area as another indicator of the hard drug's spread in the area.

Generally the report was an attempt at breaking down into five geographic regions the statistics on drug use in San Diego County.

Earlier studies from the federal government had turned up county wide studies but did nothing on a regional basis.

The report turned up some other interesting findings. Here are a few.

—San Diego county has between 23,000 and 28,000 hard core "junkies" (heroin users).

—County-wide, the use of the sedative Valium is on the whole decreasing although in the East County area the most abused group of drugs was the diazepam group. Valium is one drug from that group.

Five New Officers Added To Animal Control Staff

Graduation ceremonies for five animal control officers from the County of San Diego will be held Friday at 9 a.m. in Room 2012, Department 7 of the Municipal Court, 220 West Broadway in San Diego.

County District Attorney Edwin Miller will be the guest speaker for the ceremonies.

The five new officers have successfully completed a total of 76 hours of instruction: 136 hours of formal classroom sessions and 140 hours of related field training.

The five graduates are: Tom Van Wagner of East San Diego, graduate of S.D. State U. with a major in zoology; Dawn Danielson of Escondido, a licensed animal health technician and veterinarian's assistant; Helen Hermann of National City, a former kennel officer with the Department; Peter Nikiforak of Penasquitos, a licensed animal health technician and veterinarian's assistant; and David Hernandez of East San Diego, a former guard dog handler in the military.

Classroom instruction included such subjects as: animal handling, canine breed identification, public relations, ethics, citation procedure, physical fitness and radio procedure.

Field training emphasized those classroom subjects with a final intent of graduating officers fully qualified to handle animal control duties and responsibilities.

Encil Rains, director of the County's Department of Animal Control, said he welcomes the new officers as professionals and believes the addition of the graduates to the Department will result in an increased level of public performance.

There's An Answer

By Mr. and Mrs. Norman Vincent Peale

Spreading Germs

J. How do you feel about people shaking hands in church with everyone around them, causing confusion and germ-spreading? Wouldn't it be better for people to say simply, "God bless you?"

A. Friendliness within a congregation is strengthened by physical contact. Shaking hands with other worshipers is a time-honored way of expressing fellowship, love, warmth and caring. It helps to create a bond between those who come to church for worship, help and healing. There are germs everywhere. Why single out those in church? Enjoy this manifestation of God's love as you benefit from the rest of the church service.

Quickly Dead

Q. I am an elderly person with no income aside from what I pay into this cooperative home where I live. I was a public school teacher and guidance counselor so I have deep sympathy with your splendid writings.

My ambition now is to die soon without pain. Is it wrong to wish to die the quickest way by a heart attack? I am grateful to God for an interesting life.

A. No, we do not think it is wrong to wish to die by the quickest and least painful process. And God does grant such merciful death to many.

But if we may say so, despite the fact that your life seems to be limited in its circumstances, it still can be creative and useful and hold a good measure of happiness.

Why not try thinking life rather than death, believing always that God will take care of you lovingly. You can still do lots of creative things to make other people's lives happier.

THE FAIREST — Rita Garcia, pretty as a picture, smiles on the annual ceremony in which Don Diego (Tommy Hernandez, a Spanish movie star) makes an annual presentation to media members.

For years it has been the pleasant custom of those who operate the San Diego Expo to delegate Don Diego to bring the reigning "Fairest of the Fair" to the place of labor of those who are in the news business bringing not only the current queen, but to provid something intrinsic by way of token. This year the token is a goblet which is being handed to newspaper editor Max Goodwin. The goblet has a likeness of Don Diego together with the legend "S. Calif. Exposition". "Five more years and I'll have a complete set," said the recipient wryly. In a dozen or so years past tokens have been coasters, coffee mugs, and one year, a bud vase. All are on a shelf in the editor's office.

For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first:

Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord.

This Week's RECIPE

Deep-Fried Chicken Teriyaki

"Deep-Fried Chicken Teriyaki" was the recent winner of the California semi-finals of the "National Chicken Cooking Contest" and was submitted by Mrs. Janyce Hughes of Oakland.

Not exactly a Col. Sanders philanthropist, Mrs. Hughes said she developed the recipe by "having my friends around me while I'm cooking."

This moist chicken dish is excellent accompanied with fluffy rice. Assorted hibachi vegetable appetizers on bamboo skewers and a crisp beansprout salad complete the best exotic chicken dinner this side of the Orient.

Deep-Fried Chicken Teriyaki
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon flavor enhancer
½ teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon paprika
2 whole cut up fryers
1 cup flour
3 cups corn oil
Teriyaki sauce

Sprinkle salt, flavor enhancer, pepper and paprika on chicken. Coat with flour.

Heat corn oil in deep fryer or six-quart saucepan over medium heat to 375 degrees.

Carefully lower chicken, a few pieces at a time, into hot corn oil. Fry until well browned.

Drain chicken on paper towels and place in large shallow baking pan. Pour teriyaki sauce (recipe below) adding enough to cover chicken well.

Bake in 375 degree oven, uncovered, about 20 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Make eight servings.

Teriyaki Sauce
1 cup sugar
1 cup soy sauce
2 cups water
1 tablespoon grated ginger root
1/4 cup cooking sherry

In a saucepan, mix together one cup sugar, one cup soy sauce, two cups water, one tablespoon grated ginger root, and 1/4 cup cooking sherry. Bring to boil over medium heat and boil one minute. Reduce heat and simmer about 20 minutes or until sauce has thickened. Extra sauce may be refrigerated for future use.

Multiple Mobilehome Plates On Way Out Pete Chacon Writes

Dear Editor:

This is in response to your letter of March 17, 1977, suggesting the consolidation of forms required to register multiple width mobilehomes.

Due to the nature of your suggestion, I contacted Director Herman Sillas of the Department of Motor Vehicles. Mr. Sillas furnished me with the following information.

Under our present registration system, the two or three units making up one mobilehome are identified and registered as individual vehicles.

A license plate, registration card and ownership certificate is issued for each unit. The departmental file copy of the registration record is filed separately by license number. For these reasons, we require individual supporting documents for each unit registered.

The problem you discussed is being remedied through pending legislation. Senate Bill 138, introduced by Senator Carpenter, provides that a multiple unit mobilehome be registered as a single unit with one set of certificates and decal assigned. The Department of Motor Vehicles is supporting this bill.

Thank you for writing and giving me the opportunity to discuss this matter with you.

Sincerely,
Peter R. Chacon
Assemblyman,
Seventy-ninth District

Mills Defends Stand On Transit Prices

Dear Editor:

Recent statements have appeared in local media challenging the validity of my criticism of increased bus fares on San Diego Transit.

I believe that the primary responsibility of any transit system is to provide the most efficient service to avoid increasing fares.

As a result of legislation I carried last year, the Office of the Auditor General conducted a study entitled "Financing and Evaluating Public Transit Systems in California" to determine, among other things, methods to evaluate the efficiency and effectiveness of public transportation systems. The attached chart, derived from that study, portrays statistical indicators of a transit system's performance in terms of both the efficiency and effectiveness of the service provided for the three largest bus systems in California.

The computation of these performance indicators as part of a performance evaluation would be required of all transit operators who receive assistance from the Transportation Development Act (SB 325) under SB 759, a bill that I have authored which is presently moving through the legislature. Such performance evaluations will enable decision makers at both the local and state level to evaluate a transit system's efficiency and effectiveness.

The indicators of San Diego Transit's effectiveness in attracting patronage per unit of service output are paritcularly interesting. They reflect that San Diego Transit's ability to attract patronage has declined since fiscal year 74/75 to no more than that achieved in fiscal year 72/73.

Gary Garrison Golf Classic To Aid Indians

The Gary Garrison Celebrity Golf Classic will be held at Whispering Palms Golf Course in Rancho Santa Fe on Friday, June 17, with a shotgun start at 12:30 p.m.

The golf classic will serve as part of a fund-raising drive of $100,000 by the Indian Health Council, Inc., of San Diego County to build a satelite clinic on the Barona Reservation near Lakeside, according to Dennis Magee, director of the drive.

Garrison, entering his twelfth year as a wide receiver for the Chargers, has caught 404 passes since 1966, giving him the seventh highest total among active NFL receivers and the twenty-fourth highest all-time total.

Garrison also has been active in civic and charitable pursuits. He toured U. S. military bases in Vietnam with other NFL players after the 1969 season. He finished second in the NFL's "Man of the Year" balloting in 1973 and received a distinguished alumnus award from San Diego State in 1975. Garrison serves San Diego Federal Savings and Loan Association as an executive vice president and is active in horse breeding on his ranch in the North County.

"I have always wanted to involve myself in a program of this nature," said Garrison. "When Dennis Magee approached me, I was pleased to offer my assistance."

A similar clinic opened in October, 1976, on the Rincon Indian Reservation in North San Diego County. The facility serves up to 2,000 Indians, some of whom reside anywhere from 50 to 100 miles away.

The golf tournament is open to 144 players. Entry fee is $60 with many past and present professional athletes scheduled to participate, according to Magee. Door prizes and trophies will be given away and a buffet will be offered after the golf.

NEAR CALAMITY — No. 112, Steve Nelson of Spring Valley (center) spins in a turn of Cajon Speedway racing oval during main event. No. 13 Eddie Thompson, of San Diego going on the outside and No. 42 Jeff Barnicle of El Cajon moves his 1970 Mustang to the infield to avoid crash.

Pemberton Wins Cajon 40-Lapper

Veteran Lanny Pemberton of Lemon Grove emerged the winner of the 40-lap, destruction-derby-style super-stock main event Saturday before 4,240 fans at Cajon Speedway.

The regular destruction derby won by Ron Pearson of Lakeside was anti-climatic to what transpired earlier.

Pemberton became the second driver this season to capture two features. completing the job in 12 minutes, 35.87 seconds.

Defending champion Pat McIntyre of Spring Valley, the other driver who has taken two mains, finished second. Ron Overman of El Cajon was third.

The main event closed out the same way as the 20-lap semi, with mangled automobiles scattered about the track.

Earlier in the main, George Esau smacked the wall on the backstretch and Larry Owens tagged the cement barrier on the north corner. Then starter Billy Harrell dropped the checkered flag, young Mike Greenwell's Camaro zoomed out of control and through the pit exit shortly after being clobbered by John Dineen. Also, the cars of Richard White and Mark Meech collided with the south corner on the final lap.

In the semi-main, Ray Root rolled his Ford Fairlane after hitting the rubber-tire barrier at the pit exit. He was able to walk unscathed.

Super stock car drivers will have a chance to develop new techniques Saturday night when the El Cajon Stock Car Racing Assn. offers it's second non-points show of the season at Cajon Speedway.

Time trials begin at 6:30 p.m. the trophy dash will open the racing program at 8.

The program will include four eight-lap heats, a 10-lap consolation, 20-lap semi-main and a 40-lap main event.

It should be a busy week for sveral of the drivers who also plan to compete at Riverside International Raceway this weekend. This includes Duke Dunn, Richard White, Ron Esau, Larry Hageman and John Dineen.

S.V. Man Holds Lead at S.B. Oval

John Cartwright, of Spring Valley, current standings leader, and newcomer Ken Snelling, winner of last week's super stock feature, are expected to pick up where they left off last time when they head the field in Friday night's doubleheader auto race program at South Bay Park Speedway.

Time trials for the super stocks begin at 7 and the first race is set for 8:15 p.m.

Snelling, who has campaigns on several tracks in the southland, kept Cartwright from a clean sweep. Rather, it should be said a fouled gear forced John to accept third spot behind fast-closing Johnny Silvas.

Snelling debuted a new car and it was the first appearance this season at South Bay for the Bonita driver.

As for the supers, Cartwright has the advantage with 355 points. Jim Pavlick, also of Spring Valley, is second with 315; Bob Snider of San Diego is third.

TAKE FIVE

by John E. Wirges

Maybe it has something to do with the measure of time. Here it is well into June and already the feeling has come upon us that the year is slipping away.

And we haven't gone fishing yet. Not once. Not even a trip planned and abandoned. Nothing. As we are reminded almost everyday by the 11-year-old son.

"We never do nothin' around here," comes the familiar wail. "You always promise that we're going fishing, but we never go.. It's a gyp."

Now, living on the shores of the great Pacific, it is properly shameful that honest labor over a hot fishing line is not more often the employment of San Diego citizens. I mean, if God hadn't intended for us to enjoy the delights of reelin' in the big ones, why should he give us the enlightenment to move out here in the first place?

Breathes there a man with soul so dead that never turned to a hunk of lead and said, "To hell with work. I'd rather take these weights and catch a half-day boat out of Seaforth or Islandia."

It's as American as baseball, hotdogs, apple pie or the clunker that gobbles up all that gas and oil, gets you from here to there and always seems to need washing.

And as man becomes conditioned for this pleasurement, so he enlightens his sons and adventuresome daughters. (The ones that do not shirk from putting a wiggly worm on a barbed hook).

Girl children are included in family fishing expeditions because, after all, they are people, they need as much fresh air as boys, they're nice to have around and besides, somebody has to clean the catch.

We're big about it at our house and the girls are allowed to join in the fun. No squealing, of course and they carry their own gear.

The swift passage of the calendar and the wailing reminder of the number three son promoted a feeling of guilt in regard to the number of days since the last assault on deep sea fish and such.

Let's see. How long has it been? Oh my goodness, has it been that long? Maybe you're right. We've got to make plans to go again."

"Aw, come on Dad. Let's not plan," suggests the 11-year-old. "Let's just go. You always plan, but you never do anything."

Nobody that young should be that astute. Kids are too smart mouthed these days. In my day, I'd never talk to my Dad that way. Come to think of it, he never took me fishing, either.

"OK, Tom," I answered. "Let's just look over the fishing equipment and maybe this weekend . . . well. Who knows?"

The fishing stuff is stored in the garage. It's all back in the corner behind the old tires that are too good to throw away, but not good enough to use as a spare, some bedroom furniture the kids outgrew and an assortment of stuff that seems to belong to bicycles, lawn mowers, out-board motors and/or a number of automobiles no longer with us. I'd been promising to look that junk over for . . . oh . . . the last couple of months or so.

"Your fishing stuff?" said my wife. "It's out there in the garage with all that other junk you've been promising to throw away for the last couple of years. When are you going to get to it, anyway?"

I found my good casting rod right in front of the storage area. In place of the hook, a Western Flyer kite was attached.

"That pole sure is great for flying kites, Dad," explained the 11-year old. We never thought of those things when I was a kid.

Our search was delayed when we ran across a stack of 1965, '66 and '67 Playboy Magazines. Even the centerfolds were still there.

But you know, as we spent the afternoon glancing through them, I had this guilty feeling that the year was slipping away and we haven't been fishing, yet.

Heavyweight Wrestling Title On Line at Coliseum Tuesday

In the professional wrestling law of logic, nothing is unusual.

With that thought probably in mind, those who put together wrestling cards at the S.D. Coliseum decided that there would be a match between Beau Ramos. the American heavyweight titlist, and Chavo Guererro come Tuesday night. It's a challenge match.

What's the challenge, you may ask.

Simple. The winner must face Chavo's brother, Armando, later in the month.

Armando, where is Armando is carded to wrestle Gorgeous Keith later in the evening. If Armando loses to the gorgeous one, it may upset the evolutionary process—temporarily. But, they'll think of something.

In another piece of imagery, a punishment match has been booked between Tann Patton and Roddy Piper. In that one, of 15 minutes duration, the officials turn their collective heads while the winner has two minutes to punish his opponent in any way he sees fit. Sometimes, the rest period following the 15 minute segment gives the loser a chance to recuperate. Then the fans go wild. And nothing is more spectacular than a wrestling fan crowd going wild.

In a tag-team match, Black Gordman and the Great Goliath tangle arms and legs with Tom Jones and the Hangman.

In that one, following wrestling logic-jargon, Black Gordman is white and Tom Jones is a black super-athlete.

It'll be Prize Days for all golfers who are capable of shooting a hole in one—or wish they could.

As before, competition will be in four divisions. Target green is 115 yards for women and junior girls; 125 yards for men and junior boys.

Sponsors are Don Fischer, StoneRidge president, and Hal Davee, editor of the Poway News Chieftain

HEIKKI MIKKOLA

'Flying Finn' Carlsbad Moto Likely Winner

Finland's "iron man of moto-cross' Heikki Mikkola is determined to exchange his current World 250cc Moto Cross Championship crown this year for what he, and most other observers of the International moto-cross scene, considers to be the most prestigious title of them all . . . . that of World 500cc Champion.

And now, with the American round of the 500cc World Championship approaching fast, the "Flying Finn" seems poised to realize his dream.

The Hang Ten United States Moto Cross Grand Prix is scheduled for June 19th at Carlsbad Raceway in Southern California and marks the apex of the Championship year. Following a win in his native Finland on May 22, Heikki now leads current (and five - time) 500cc Champion, Roger De Coster by 103 points to 79. Mikkola dominated each of the two points-scoring races in Finland with De Coster fourth in the opening event and fifth in the next.

Two names more than familiar to U.S. race fans shared the second and third spots in the two Finnish GP events. America's Brad Lackey trailed Holland's Gerrit Wolsink for third place in the first leg but reversed the positions in the next. Wolsink is the Dutchman who forsook his dental practice for professional moto-cross and has yet to regret the decision! He has won the Hang Ten Belray event for the past three years in succession and is currently third in the points standings, just behind De Coster with 74 points and 13 points clear of American hopeful, Lackey.

With 30 points up for grabs at each of the 10 remaining events, the situation between the top four is still totally fluid. But Mikkola, who in 1974 interrputed Roger De Coster's streak of five World 500cc Championship wins, is very much the man of tne moment.

Winners Named In Gallo Tourney

Winners of the Gallo Premium Cup Mixed Doubles Tennis Tournament held at the Helix South Tennis Club in Casa de Oro have been announced by Mike Kellogg, club professional.

Jean and Dick Bussy defeated Donalda Kellogg and Don Byrn in the finals by scores of 7-5, 7-5 in the tourney which drew an entry of 16 teams.

The event was one of 32 held in San Diego County under joint sponsorship of the Gallo Winery and the San Diego Division of the U.S. Professional Tennis Assn.

The rule that a person to be nominated for the Hall of Fame must have been dead at least 25 years was waived in the nomination of Orville Wright, who played a major role in the development of the airplane.

Padres 9 Game Homestand Opens Against Cubs Tuesday

A four-games-in-three-days stopover in Pittsburgh and then home to begin a nine-game homestand is the situation facing the San Diego Padres as the club heads into the middle of June.

The Padres will close a 14-game road swing, the club's longest of the 1977 campaign, with single games in Pittsburgh against the Pirates on Friday and Saturday, and then a wrapup doubleheader on Sunday.

San Diego will then return home for its only homestand of the month of June. The Padres will be idle on Monday and then play nine straight against the Chicago Cubs, St. Louis and Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cubs, the surprise team in the National League thus far as the Windy City crew has been running at or near the top of the heap in the Eastern Division for the last few weeks, will open the homestand with single 7 p.m. games on Tuesday through Thursday.

Then, the St. Louis Cardinals will arrive for June 17-18-19 single affairs with the first two contests getting underway at 7 p.m. and then the series finale on Sunday beginning at the usual 1 p.m. Rounding out the homestand will be three games with the Pittsburgh Pirates, Monday through Wednesday, June 20-22, with all three set for 7 p.m. starts.

9 Here, 17 Away

Those nine games, then, will be all of the home action for the padres for the month of June as the master schedule calls for the club to play just nine games in San Diego as compared to 17 encounters on the road. The homestand will also be bringing to a close a run of 16 straight games against members of the National League's Eastern Division as the Padres won't see an Estern club again until July 21.

The top promotional events on the calendar for the opening portion of the homestand will feature the Padres annual Little League Nights on Tuesday and Wednesday. June 14-15.

On Tuesday, the Padres will host youngsters involved in the Little League program from Districts 22 (Imperial Valley), 31 (North County) and 41 (El Cajon and East County) plus those taking part in the area Pony League, Girls Softball and Bobby Sox program as long as they are in team uniform.

Rounding out the two-night program on Wednesday will be Districts 33 (San Diego), 32 (Beach Area) and 42 (South Area) and 42 (South Bay).

The Lobsters Are Coming ...They're Hard to Figure

Who are the Boston Lobsters and what are they doing with the best record in World Team Tennis.

They aren't for one thing, your usual run of the mill powerhouse. On paper, there isn't a strong link among them. But when they visit the Sports Arena Friday night at 7:30 to face the Friars, they'll arrive with the league leaders in nearly every competitive category.

If the Lobsters are fat when they arrive (the team had lost only two of its first 16 matches) San Diego fans wil hope to be. Should the Friars win Friday night, every person in attendance will be given a free pizza compliments of Square Pan Pizza.

This is the second attempt at mass pizza feeding by Square Pan, the Friars squandering the first opportunity in losing to New York last month.

Overcoming Boston appears no easier task but player-coach Cliff Drysdale may juggle his lineup to assist the challenge. He now has Dianne Fromholtz, newly acquired from Los Angeles, as a possibility to face the Lobsters' Martina Navratilova in women's singles.

Navratilova and Fromholtz

Navratilova, who at 20 has defections from both Czechoslovakia and Cleveland to her credit, is second only to Chris Evert in singles. Fromholtz won one of three matches against her last year while Kerry Reid, San Diego's mainstay so far, did better at 2-2 and earned a 6-4 victory in the Friars' 29-19 loss to Boston May 14 at Hartford, Conn.

"Fromholtz gives us flexibility with the women we didn't have before," Drysdale said. "There are some players she will prefer to play over others and we can set our lineup accordingly."

Navratilova, for all her talent and success, hardly is Boston's big bopper. That distinction at present is shared by Tony Roche (32) and Roy Emerson (41), who the former leading the league in men's singles and the two pairing to pace the league's men's doubles teams.

In their first meeting in two years, Roche whipped Rod Laver 6-2 in May. That defeat did, however, send Rod on a streak that has produced six singles wins in seven starts.

Wimbledon Crowns

Emerson, who has won more doubles titles than any other player (four Wimbledon championships alone) pairs with Roche, himself a doubles expert. Powerful Mike Estep handles the mixed doubles chores, paired with Romania's Virginia Ruzici.

Greer Stevens and Navratilova form the league's strongest women's doubles team, and that was undefeated through 14 matches.

You have an idea as to the closeness of the Boston unit when you examine the sources of player's adolescence. Emerson is from Queensland, Australia; Estep from Waco, Texas; Roche from Wagga Wagga, Australia; Ruzici from Bucharest; Stevens from Pietermaritzburg, South Africa, and Navratilova from Prague, Czechoslovakia. Plainly, the secret to Boston's success is that the players aren't able to understand each other.

This will be the Friars' last home match until July 7, the league taking time off for Wimbledon.

Gun Instructors Needed for Youth

More National Rifle Assn. certified instructors are needed to teach people of all ages the basic techniques of competition-type shooting and firearms safety, according to local gun club officials.

To satisfy this demand for instructors for not only gun clubs, but camp counselors, Boy Scout leaders, youth groups, military, and others interested in the sport of target shooting, an NRA Instructor Training Course has been scheduled.

The two-day session will be Saturday and Sunday—all day, both days by NRA Training Counselor Jack H. Duncan. Duncan has been an NRA instructor for 20 years and was appointed as Training Counselor in 1967. A competition rifle shooter for many years, he is knowledgeable in all types of firearms, safety rules, and instructional techniques.

Sponsor of the course is the South Bay Rod and Gun Club and it will be held at the Valley Gun Club range on Cuyamaca blvd. in Santee.

Interested persons should contact Duncan at 448-4611 days or 443-6336 in the evening.

Graduates will be designated as NRA Certified Instructors in rifle, pistol, shotgun, and home firearms responsibility. Minimum age for the course is 15 years.

Wilson Bill For Abused Children Passes Senate

SACRAMENTO — Senator Bob Wilsons bill which would protect the identity of abused juveniles has been passed by the California Senate and now goes to the Assembly for further action.

Wilson (D-La Mesa), said his bill seeks to protect the identity of abused children by prohibiting probation officers from transmitting to the Bureau of Criminal Statistics any personally identifying information concerning non-criminal juveniles. Minors charged with the commission of a crime would not be covered by the measure.

"Currently we have thousands of children who are dependents or wards of the Juvenile Court because they have been abused or neglected," said Wilson, "They are not criminals and have committed no crimes.

"We multiply the burdens of these children," the La Mesa Senator continued, "by sending identifying information, including their names, to the Bureau of Criminal Statistics. I introduced this measure because I feel we need to help and not further harm our abused and neglected children."

Fishing 'Excellent' At Lake Cuyamaca

Fishing is excellent at Lake Cuyamaca, which is filled to capacity according to a spokesman for the Cuyamaca Rec. & Park Dist.

Trout will be planter every week in June. A total of 4,000 pounds are scheduled to be stocked this month.

Salmon eggs continue to be the best bait for trout, which are disperned evenly throughout the lake, it was said. Later, they will move into the deeper water at the log boom and near the rock dike.

Both bass and bluegill are carrying eggs and will spawn soon. Most bass have been caught off the rocky points of the island with plastic worms. Bluegill and redear up to 1¼ pounds have been taken from the tules on redworms.

Lake Cuyamaca has released 225 tagged trout each worth a free Mepps spinner. In June, an additional 100 tagged trout will be planted. A bonus prize for the largest trout caught—tagged or not—is awarded each weeek.

The lake ils open every day from sunrise to sunset. Permits, bait, and boat rentals are presently available at 5:30 a.m., and the dock stays open until 7:30 p.m.

Reservations for boats and outboards are a good idea on the weekend. Call (714) 765-0515 Wednesday through Friday betweeen 5:30 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Solar Studies Funded For Spring Valley Student

Stephen Wolfe, a resident of Spring Valley and a student of San Diego State University, will experiment with solar energy this summer by a grant from the school's physics department and Home Federal Savings and Loan.

Wolfe, a junior physics major, has received a $500 grant from the savings and loan association and will work with Dr. John D. Garrison, project director for the SDSU physics department's solar energy research.

Gordon Shackelford, the physics department's scholarship chairman said Wolfe would be working with one of the most advanced solar energy collection systems in the country.

"Current systems heat water or air to temperatures to approximate 130-160 degrees," said Shackelford, "Our system produces temperatures as high as 450 degrees. These high temperatures could be used for generating electricity or to permit the design of compact high efficiency systems for home space and water heating."

Wolfe will spend two months this summer working on the project.

The study found valium abuse was the reason for 10 emergency room cases per 1,000 population and also found the drug to be used most often by white women in their 30's.

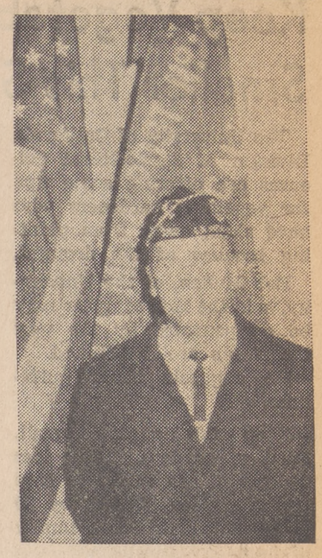

—The greatest abusers of flurazepam (a sedative) in the North County area were white men and women between 50 and 70 years of age. Although suicide is largely suspected, no official reason for this abuse could be found.

—75 per cent of the diazepam (valium) use, 64 per cent of the secobarbital ("reds") use, 57 per cent of the methaqualone ("qualude" or "ludes") use, 80 per cent of the flurazepam (sleeping pills) use in the East County area had suicide listed as the primary motivation for taking the drug.

Jacobsen said in many cases listed as suicides or suicide attempts, alcohol and drugs were mixed causing a toxic solution in the blood stream.

"The importance of the study and the work we do here in the department is to get people to realize the importance of checking with a doctor to clearly understand what happens when you mix alcohol and drugs," reiterated Jacobsen.

The report's author, John Green, said last week the department is embarking on a new study on the abuse of aspirin by 12 to 18 year olds.

Keep Vegetable Gardens Smaller This Summer

The University of California Division of Agricultural Sciences are offering some tips for vegetable gardeners who have shied away from planting because of the drought.

Bob Mullen, of the University, said the lack of water may be compensated by the way the plants are distributed.

He suggests these guidelines.

—Keep the garden small. Smaller gardens need less water and are easier to care for. A garden 20 feet by 30 feet is adequate for a family of four.

—Locate the garden in an area where the ground is level and the soil is medium texture loam. A sloping garden is difficult to water and causes runoff. Sandy soils need more watering. Good consistency loam is determined by wetting then squeezing it into a short ribbon of soil. If the soil breaks into ½ pieces it is of fairly good consistency.

—Avoid or reduce plantings that are grown during the warm season and use a lot of water. These plants are melons, tomatoes, squash, sweet corn, cucumbers, peppers, eggplant, and sweet potatoes. Such plants as carrot beets, turnips, radishes, asparagus, potatoes, onions cabbage, cauliflower, chard, and spinach, tend to use less water becaue they are grown during cooler times of the year.

—Plant shallow rooted vegetables. Deep rooted plants naturally take more water.

—After planting, use a mulch around the base of each plant to reduce water loss from evaporation.

—Use good watering methods. Give the whole garden area a good, deep, slow watering at planting to get good water penetration. From then on, water only enough to keep the upper 12 to 24 inches of soil moist during the growing season.

—Keep the garden free of weeds. Remove them while they are young. Weeds can use up to 30 per cent of the water applied to the plants.

—Determine how often watering is necessary. Dig up some soil from a 6 to 12 inch depth with a garden spade. Try to ball it in your hand. If it holds together, watering is not necessary. As a rule of thumb, water lightly every seven days for shallow-rooted plants, and heavily every 14 days for moderate to deep-rooted plants.

—Sandy soils need watering more often, every four or five days. Clay soils hold water better and need watering less often.

—Finally, check the wind. Windy conditions increases evaporation loss and alters the distribution of water.

The University of California has more tips of saving water and gardening. They are available for a postcard from Saving Water in the Home Garden, P.O. Box 1629, Richmond, CA 94802. Ask for publication no. 2975.

Sea World Plans Facility For Sharks Display, Research

A revolutionary experimental research and display facility for large sharks will be built for Sea World of San Diego by a design team headed by Homer Delawie Associates AIA of San Diego at a cost of $1.5 million.

The exhibit, which will feature a major and unique use of solar heating, will hold sharks up to 12 feet long—a size not normaly kept in a controlled environment.

Ground breaking is expected to take place in September on a 1.5-acre site north of GAF-Shamu Stadium. The project is scheduled to be open to the public by the summer of 1978. The 12,000-square foot structure will be the largest in the park.

A copper-colored standing roof containing 4,000 square feet of solar heating panels in three gables atop the exhibit will form an ecologically appropriate, as well as an attractive look.

Fresh water flowing through these solar panels will be pumped to a heat exchanger which will in turn heat the sea water in the exhibit tank.

The entrance to the exhibit will feature a 40,000-gallon exterior sea water pool which will hold a variety of small sharks and rays. A graphic-lined gallery will lead visitors into the interior.

The main tank, located entirely indoors, will be 100 feet long with varying widths of 30 to 42 feet, and varying depths from 12 to 15 feet. It will be home to about 20 sharks of 11 species, such as hammerhead, tiger, mako and great white. The tank will be rectangular —rather than round — to accommodate the swim glide pattern of sharks.

Viewing panels, through which the sharks may be observed, will be acrylic plastic in sheets eight feet high, 24 feet long and five inches thick. According to Delawie, the unique process of pouring the acrylic plastic in layers to create panels of the required thickness necessitated obtaining them from a Japanese manufacturer.

The large tank, holding 350,000 gallons of sea water, will have an ozone filtration system to facilitate cleaning and maintenance.

Speedometer Check Signs Now on I-8 E

Drivers traveling on Interstate 8 in East County may now check the accuracy of their vehicle speedometers. Captain C. M. Douglas of the El Cajon Area Highway Patrol Office said odometer check signs have been installed on Interstate 8 at the easterly edge of El Cajon.

Signs are posted just east of Lake Jennings Road for eastbound traffic and just west of Dunbar for westbound traffic. Signs are posted every mile starting at "O" and then indicating each mile for four miles.

Motorists may check their speedometers by holding speed at 55 m.p.h. through the measured mile signs and recording how many seconds it took to travel the mile. Divide the number of seconds into 3600 to get the actual speed.

For example: If the speed is 55 m.p.h., through the one mile distance and it took 65 seconds, the speedometer is accurate (3600 divided by 65=55 m.p.h.). If it takes you 63 seconds, the speedometer is two miles per hour slow (3600 divided by 63=57 m.p.h.).

The formula is rather simple. Just remember to divide the seconds (time) into 3600.

Douglas encourages motorists to check speedometers occasionally. Some motorists are violating the 55 m.p.h. maximum speed limit without realizing it, due to inaccurate speedometers. Motorists should remember also that by installing larger tires on the vehicle, actual speed may be increased from 3 to 5 m.p.h. while the speedometer still says 55 m.p.h.

Health Tips

Sun And Skin

From the American Medical Association

Want to get a good, painful, blistering sunburn It's easy. Just stay out in the sun in your shorts or swim suit all day on the first truly hot, sunny day of the summer season. You'll get your burn.

Or, do you want to begin picking up a summer tan without burning? That's easy, too. Just follow the simple rules of the American Medical Association: 15 to 20 minutes exposure the first day; 20 to 25 minutes the second day; 25 to 30 minutes the third day; 30 to 35 minutes the fourth day. Thereafter base exposure time on the degree of redness and tenderness of your skin. The shorter exposures are for those with light skin; the longer times are for darker skin.

Remember this about tanning—it can't be rushed. Trying to rush it will only result in a burn. The burned skin will peel, leaving you pale and pink again.

Of course, the AMA also points out that there is no health value in tanning. In fact, it contributes to early aging, and wrinkling of the skin, and to proliferation of skin cancer. But, if you insist on a tan, start slow and build up gradually.

Consider the time of day for your suntanning. The sun's rays are most potent between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., standard time. You won't get much tan before 8 a.m. or after 4 p.m., standard time. Don't forget that you can burn on cloudy days, on the water, and at high altitudes.

Suntan lotion can be helpful in preventing a burn and promoting a tan. The lotions contain a chemical sun screen that absorbs some of the rays, while letting others through. They also contain a lubricant to keep the skin from drying out too quickly. Suntan lotions must be reapplied at least once every two hours, and whenever the film may have worn off or washed off.

If you burn—ointments, wet compresses and soothing lotions will help the discomfort. A bland cold cream or a lightweight mineral oil may be applied to the skin. If the pain is excessive or if extensive blistering is present, consult your physician.

Driest in Decades to Quakiest in Eons

Drought Group 'Flooded' With Weather Reports

SACRAMENTO — The biggest problem facing Major General Frank J. Schober, Jr., the head of the California Drought Emergency Task Force, is not the weather but the weather forecasters.

Schober, the commander of the California National Guard appointed to head up the task force, said his office is being flooded with "an almost limitless roster of experts who make confident assertions that next winter will be the wettest in years, the driest in decades, the coldest in centuries, the warmest in ages, and the quakiest in eons."

"Our job," said the General, "would be a lot simpler if we could make a wise choice among the wealth of forecasts. The assurances are so diverse that prudence suggests we all continue doing what we're doing—save water which in turn saves energy."

The most optimistic weather report received by the Task Force is from Orman Granger of the University of California Berkeley geopraphy department. Granger predicted next winter should bring the state 160 per cent of its normal rainfall.

"We hope his forecast proves out," said Schober, "but even if we received the predicted 160 per cent of rain, our problem would not be completely resolved.

"The Department of Water Resources reminds us that a season bringing 120 per cent of normal precipitation is required simply to keep up where we are right now in terms of the drought," the General continued, "For replenishment of our reservoirs and streams and replacement of ground water, we require several years of the kind of rain Mr. Granger suggests."

General Schober, who a few months ago declared war on the California National Guard's paper work tonnage, reiterated the only sensible action is water conservation until "time solves our dilemma."

In between the tonnage of weather reports the General receives, he spends his time with the Farmer's Almanac.
